First Quarter 2010

WIT has had a busy first quarter while focusing on key Customs interests. We began the year with Duty Drawback, and it was, no doubt, well-attended. The economy drives our companies to look for any means to reduce expenses, or in this case, to obtain entitled duty refunds from the government. The seminar provided WIT members with a much needed update after major changes to the drawback industry. Two of our speakers included Maryann Carney, National Field Drawback Chief, who re-visited WIT members in the L.A. area after several years, and Velda Griffen, Field Director in the Office of International Trade, who is now also in charge of drawback within Regulatory Audit. Since part of Ms. Griffen's objectives is to review the current standards and structure for drawback audit, some of our more experienced drawback claimants in the audience gave constructive feedback to CBP as to the trade's perspective of the most effective and streamlined means of audit. This was an excellent example of receptive dialog exchange between CBP and the trade.

Our second event consisted of a User Group discussion on C-TPAT validation, graciously hosted by member American Honda Motors. The discussion included both experienced and those new to C-TPAT. The meeting offered members a chance to share best practices and learn recent experiences about CBP's apparent interests and concerns in security issues. Watch for the next User Group discussion in our Customs Professional Network Series on June 9th in which the topic will be Import Security Filing (ISF). WIT is pleased to provide this forum to help the trade comply with this newly implemented mandate.

Last but not least, WIT is pleased to reinstate its Customs Classification Seminar – a signature annual class for members for over 10 years now. WIT welcomed back Bruce Leeds, whose well-known techniques in teaching for the Customs Brokers exam served the audience well in the complex world of classification. CBP Senior Import Specialists Charlene Miller and Vernie Parrott provided fun examples of everyday life products, which made the class more interactive and entertaining. The seminar was followed by a networking mixer in which attendees had the opportunity to meet our CBP experts in person.

To kick off the second quarter, WIT will host a unique event featuring techniques to effectively utilize Social Media Networking tools for international businesses. After the presentation, guests are invited to stay later for the mixer to enjoy an evening of fine cocktails, delicious hors d'oeuvres, and sophisticated jazz at the trendy Wokcano restaurant in Long Beach.

Many more events are in store this year and the WIT board members look forward to meeting you at a future occasion!

Room to Read

As Room to Read (RTR) celebrates its ten year anniversary, WIT is proud, once again, to support its favorite charity. The race is on as WIT members join efforts to reach the highest sponsorship goals yet to help RTR continue its global expansion. We are excited to share with you, RTR's vision for the second decade which focuses on two key areas: literacy and gender equality in education. In the past ten years, RTR has worked with thousands of communities across nine countries to provide enhanced learning opportunities for millions of children in Asia and Africa. RTR's future goal is more ambitious than ever: to enable more than 10 million children in over a dozen developing world countries to maximize their education experiences by 2015.

We thank all who have contributed to this cause by attending or donating to WIT's "Christmas in July" and "WITmas" events in the past. We invite you to continue on this important journey with us.
